

In the Spring, the Dipper is upside down, like it is pouring out the heavy springtime rains onto the earth.

Spring

Summer

In the Summer, the Dipper is upright on its bowl, with the handle pointing up into the heavens.

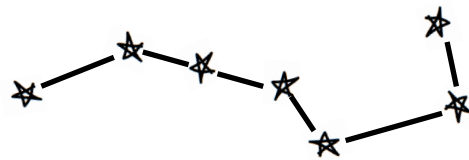

Polaris

Winter

In the Winter, the Dipper is upright on its handle, like an icicle hanging down from the bowl.

Fall

In the Fall, the Dipper is oriented like a spoon resting on the horizon, ready to catch the falling leaves of autumn.

from liebacklookup.com
for personal use only